

The Carmel Pine Cone

Editor's Column

When I was a kid in high school, I signed a student petition asking that the athletic coach be fired. The petition passers said the coach had thrown a Japanese boy down the stairs. It was a racial issue.

Three days later I found that the coach hadn't thrown the Japanese boy down stairs; he'd thrown the fullback off the team for in-subordination.

That day I swore I'd never sign another petition so long as I lived, so help me, unless I had initialed it myself. I kept my resolution.

Then yesterday I signed a petition. And now I'm worried about it.

Pine Cone Social Editor Virginia Shaw's mother lives in San Francisco and is on the Save the Cable Cars Committee. She sent Virginia a petition to pass around for Carmel signatures. It requests that the cable car issue be put on the ballot in the next San Francisco city election so the citizens can vote to keep their cable cars.

There is no questioning the sincerity of the Save the Cable Cars Committee, but city elections can be peculiar. Consider our own last one. The citizens elected the candidates who stumped for repeal of the city sales tax, and voted to keep the sales tax. And they voted down the advisory question proposing a pension for city employees, when the old council had adopted the sales tax especially to finance a pension for city employees. We ended with two anti-sales tax councilmen, a sales tax to finance a pension, and a mandate not to establish the pension. So the council is spending the sales tax money on streets and drains, which everybody thinks they want but nobody can stand the looks of when they get them.

With city elections such a moody business, I'm wondering if it's wise to risk the cable cars in one. Maybe it would be better if the Committee to Save the Cable Cars just went after the transit board with a club.

Democrats To Choose Between Farr And Atteridge Wednesday

At a convention to be held in Salinas Wednesday evening the Democrats will choose between Fred Farr, Carmel, and Arthur Atteridge, Salinas, as their candidate for State Assemblyman from this district.

Both men are attorneys. They offered themselves as candidates at a Democratic meeting in Salinas Tuesday, but said they would not run against each other.

The convention is to be made up of a representative of the county central committee, state central committee, two non-members for each supervisorial district to be chosen by the committee of that district, three delegates and one delegate for each 20 members of the Carmel Women's, the Monterey Peninsula and the Salinas-Alisal Democratic clubs.

Council Opens Casanova Street, And Hands Out Welcome Sign To Exploiters Of Residential Area

Wednesday night the Carmel City Council, in the face of protests of every property owner and resident of the affected block, opened a street for the financial benefit of the parents of two of its members. The two council members personally interested in the issue did not even offer to abstain from voting.

The council's action was a tacit acknowledgment of the policy toward which it has been working for two years: abandonment of the traditional attitude that "Carmel is primarily a city of homes", to the acknowledgment that, with this administration, commercial interests come first, not only in the business district, but in the residential area as well.

Casanova Street is one block long north of Ocean Avenue. At the end of the street is a grove of oaks. On the east side, the last lots are owned by Mrs. Peter Taylor, Councilman John Chitwood's mother-in-law. The property across the street was acquired last fall by Sinclair McClellan, a builder, and Councilwoman Geraldine Smith's father. Both properties have homes on them, with access. The land extends down to Fourth Street.

McClellan, desiring to build two houses on the lower lots for investment, denuded the land of pines, and asked that Casanova Street be cut through to give convenient access to the lower lots.

Candidates For Carmel City Council

Carmel city election campaign season opened officially Tuesday when the first council candidate, Leo Tanous, real estate broker, took out nomination papers.

Tanous, a nephew of Mrs. Anna Tanous, came to the Peninsula in 1947 and settled in the Valley, where he established a real estate business. In January of 1952 he married Margaret Kiley of Carmel Valley. In September of that year they moved into town, buying a home on Fourth and Lopez streets, Tanous opening a real estate office at Dolores and Fifth streets.

A native of North Dakota, Tanous attended the University of North Dakota. He served in the armed forces during World War II as a member of the 34th Infantry Division in the African and Italian campaigns.

He is a member of the Carmel Young Republicans, The Toastmasters Club of Carmel, and American Legion Post No. 512.

Carl Patnude, service station proprietor, took out his nomination papers as candidate for city council Wednesday afternoon.

He has lived in Carmel since 1947, first came to the Peninsula "from San Jose by way of Salinas", in 1939 to live in Pacific Grove. He was born in San Jose, and says he's the same age as Jack Benny and can prove it.

He is married and has two daughters, Lois, ten years old and a student at Sunset; Donna, 14, attending Carmel High School.

He says he has no crusades in mind, and like everybody else, he wants to keep Carmel the way it is, but he doesn't think it can be done by "just sitting".

"The time has come, if Carmel is to go on staying Carmel, it has to do it on an active, rather than a passive basis. It is not enough to say, 'No, you can't cut down a tree.' There has to be a reforesting program. And just a fringe area of trees between the property line and the street is not enough."

He said he didn't have the answer to the parking problem, but "it should be possible to work it out in a long-range manner." He also thinks action should be taken about providing some sort of pension for city employees.

"And I'd like to see a public meeting with citizens asking questions, like we had before the last city election."

Patnude is past president of the Kiwanis, a member of the Masonic Lodge, an elder of the Presbyterian Church in Monterey, and has served for several years as a member of the Carmel Special Police, a small, carefully selected volunteer citizen corps.

The French Cafe To Buy On Sale Liquor License

A legal notice appeared in yesterday's issue of the Seaside Sentinel of an intended sale and transfer of a Carmel Valley on-sale beer and wine license to the French Restaurant on Dolores Street in Carmel.

The Sentinel is a six page weekly newspaper published and circulated in Seaside.

According to the legal, transfer is to take place at the law office of Thomas K. Perry (Carmel City Attorney) at 10:00 o'clock on February 26.

Carmel city council has received no notice of the intended transfer.

Purchasers of the license are Janine Johnston and Madeleine Dowdakin, Carmel. Vendee is Hope Alexander, Airways Ranch, Carmel Valley.

Last fall, when it was rumored that the French Restaurant was considering purchase of a beer and wine license, citizens expressed the opinion that the tiny premises were unsuitable, and the matter was apparently dropped.

Church Refuses Offer Of New Site; Hearing In Salinas Tuesday

Property owners vs. congregation will go into a second round Tuesday at Salinas when the county planning commission holds public hearing, 2:00 o'clock in supervisors' chambers, on the application of the Carmel Presbyterian Church for a building permit in the Delfino Tract, on a two-acre site, between Highway No. 1 and Hatton Fields No. 1.

Late this week James Doud, one of the Hatton Fields property owners opposing the Delfino site for the church, offered an alternate site, five acres on Carmel Valley road, adjacent to the Hatton Ranch, and two-fifths of a mile from the intersection with Highway No. 1. The property, owned by George Dollar, is available to the church for $15,000. Doud, who handles the property, would forego his commission.

The church is paying $18,000 for the controversial two-acre site in the Delfino Tract.

"They would have a beautiful view here of the Valley," Doud told the Pine Cone. "There's plenty of space for more building when they need to expand. I own the property across the road, Rancho Rio Vista Tract. It is not heavily built up like Hatton Fields, and anybody buying lots here would know there was a church, and there would be no deception."

"Nobody is going to be able to walk to the Delfino Tract site if the church builds there," he added. "So if they are going to have to drive to church anyway, a few minutes farther won't make much difference. And the narrow streets of Hatton Fields wouldn't have to carry more traffic than they were built to handle."

Alton Walker, representing the church, turned it down. He said the church authorities in New York had approved the Delfino

Tract and plans had been made for building there.

The church won the first round Monday morning of this week when, after a public hearing in Carmel City Hall, the advisory committee to the planning commission voted approval of the Delfino Tract site. The advisory committee will recommend to the county planning commission at the public hearing Tuesday that the church be granted a building permit. The Hatton Fields property owners will be on hand to reiterate the objections they presented to the advisory committee at Monday's hearing.

The congregation's case was presented by their attorney, Carmel Martin, Jr., who read a letter from San Jose traffic expert, James M. Campbell.

Campbell had made a survey of the site and adjacent area and reported: "The site is suitable in size, shape and topography to contain all necessary off-street auto parking . . . with facilities for 75 cars, one car space for each four seats in the church. Landscaping to complement the natural growth on the site will screen parking areas. Intensive use of the site will be restricted generally to the early, or daylight, part of one day each week. The site has a favorable feature in being adjacent to a major traffic street, but having its direct access from a minor

Ernest Calley Honored By P.T.A.

Ernest Calley, who retired last May after 25 years as shop instructor at Sunset School, was awarded a life membership in the Parent-Teachers Association at the organization's annual Founder's Day Tea last week. The coveted award, presented annually to an outstanding member of the community, came as a complete surprise to Calley.

In presenting the award Mrs. Fred Diefendorf, president of the Carmel P.T.A., cited Calley's long and energetic work with and for Carmel's kids — particularly his masterminding of the annual Kite Festival and his tireless teaching of conservation, including his founding of the Junior Audubon Club here. Calley's belief that "every child should have experience with the materials with which he lives" gave over two generations of Carmelites not only a knowledge of the practical arts, but an appreciation of the beautiful in both animate and inanimate nature.

In a short speech of thanks to the P.T.A. group, Calley made the welcome announcement that he has agreed to continue his supervision of the colorful kite festival and will, as before, be on hand to help with the building of the wood-and-paper fliers in his spare time. He has continued his teaching in the Adult School program, and directs classes in pottery and woodworking in both the Carmel and Pacific Grove night schools.

Following the awards ceremony, the large meeting saw a demonstration of audio-visual techniques by Sunset School pupils under the direction of Eleanor Crouch, Stuart Mitchell and Mrs. Eben Whittlesey.

A pair of important league basketball tilts are slated for the Carmel High Gym tonight when the smooth Gilroy squads arrive to battle the Padres for positions near the top of the league standings. A Carmel lightweight victory will put the Padrecitos in a tie for second place while a varsity victory would establish the Padres as contenders for the flag. In earlier meetings this year the Carmel lightweights edged the Gilroy limiteds in a closely contested thriller while the Gilroy heavies whipped the Padre varsity rather handily.

Tonight's action will be the last league home games for the Padres this season. The Red & Gray cagers engage the Junipero Memorial teams in a pair of practice jousts next Tuesday afternoon and travel to Pacific Grove a week from tonight for the league finale.

Carmel fans well remember the polished play of Bob Hagen's Gilroy teams in the Carmel tournaments and will be privileged to see Gilroy's very best hoop team in action tonight. Sparked by Tony Vigna, rated the top cager in the CCAL, the Mustangs have size, good speed and clever play patterns to put pressure on their opponents. The Padres will try to counter the Mustang threat by the strong rebound work of John Farrell and George Wightman, plus the accurate outside shooting of George Hunter, Paul Fratessa, Don Leidig and Dick Jennings. In their last four games the Padres have been over the 50-point mark and hope to continue their basket barrage tonight.

Captain Gary Nielsen and his lightweight crew will be out to prove that their last victory over

George Wightman (18) was Carmel's top scorer, followed by George Hunter (12), John Farrell (11), David Castagna (6) and Dick Jennings (5). The outstanding rebound work of Farrell and Castagna was vital to the Carmel cause. Fine passing and play-making by Paul Fratessa, Rene Requiro, and Dick Jennings stood out in the Padre offense.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY
 SWIM AT BEACH CLUB

The Monterey Peninsula Country Club will hold its 28th annual Washington's Birthday Swim, rain or shine, at the Beach Club Monday morning at 8:00 o'clock. The participants will thaw out at a breakfast to follow at the Country Club, with Dr. Harry Brownell, one of the founders of the annual splash, to preside. Dr. Charles M. Richards and his choral ensemble will entertain during the meal, which will be followed by a men's point par golf tourney.

PADRES 2-TIME HOLLISTER
 IN CCAL HOOP ACTION

Carmel High's lightweight and varsity basketball teams enjoyed their visit to Hollister last Friday night as they romped to a pair of league victories over the cellar-dwelling Haybalers. A determined Red & Gray lightweight squad got off to a flying start and kept going to smother the Hollister Babes, 49-24. The little Padres put on their best game of the current season, hitting on 42% of their shots from the floor, 88% from the free-throw line, and setting up a tight man-to-man defense which throttled the Hayseed attack. Mike Mosolf (15) was the top gunner for the Carmel lights followed by Charlie Dawson (8), Eric Scarlett (7), and Jon Zellhofer (6).

Carmel's varsity found the Haybalers hard to shake in the first three quarters but found the answer in the final session to win going away, 58-42. A pair of new players on the Hollister squad, Ken Klauer and Dan Baumgartner, gave the Padres lots of opposition on the boards to give the Haybalers the rebound edge for most of the game. After trading basket for basket and keeping the score knotted up for the first three quarters, Carmel put on a Wightman-led 23-point scoring spurt in the fourth period while holding the hosts to seven markers. Using his favorite fall-away shot with telling effect, the lanky Carmel center hit four field goals without a miss to change a close game into a 16-point victory. Accuracy at the free-throw line paid off for the local preps as they connected on 26 out of 30 charity chances.

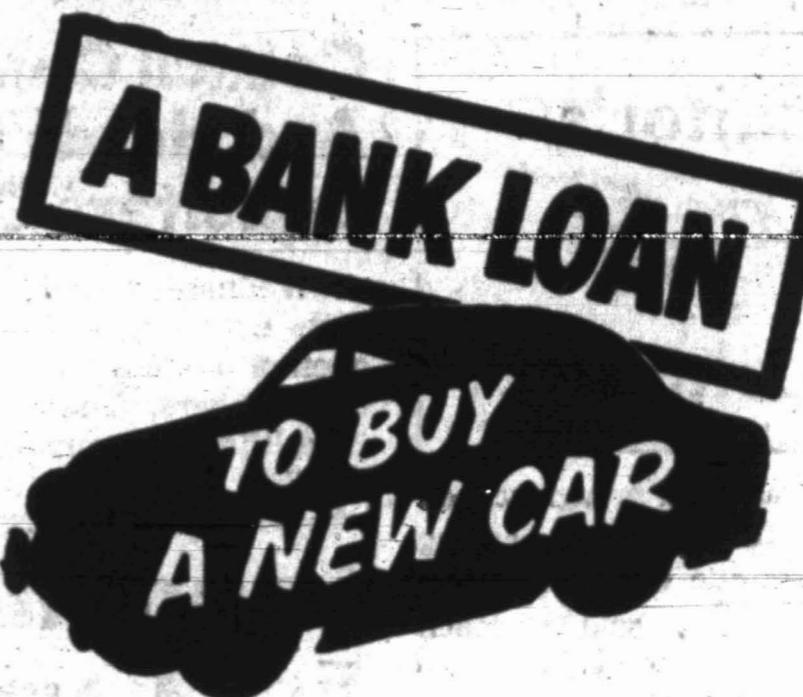

Captain Gary Nielsen and his lightweight crew will be out to prove that their last victory over

Belle B. Waller

Mrs. Belle Brown Waller died last Friday at the age of 91 at the Mission Tract home of her daughter, Mrs. Ralph Lowry, with whom she had lived for the past three and a half years. She had been in failing health for some time.

A native of Batavia, New York, Mrs. Waller was born November 20, 1862. For 42 years she made her home in Pullman, Washington, where her husband, the late Osmar L. Waller, held the post of vice-president of Washington State College until his death in 1935. She remained a member of the Plymouth Congregational Church of Seattle until her death.

She leaves three daughters, Mrs. Ralph Lowry, Mrs. M. G. Brislaw and Miss Florence Waller, all of Carmel; six grandsons; four great-grandsons and one great-granddaughter.

Funeral services were held Monday morning at the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea, with Dr. K. Fillmore Gray officiating. Entombment was in Spokane, Washington. Paul Mortuary was in charge of local arrangements.

In The Round Play Opens Tonight At The Golden Bough

With tonight's opening performance of Ring Round the Moon sold out, and tickets going rapidly for the remaining two performances this weekend, the play bids fair to outdo the record of its predecessors in the Golden Bough Players Circle. Director Lee Crowe's cast, as listed in these columns last week, will be the first to enact this play in-the-round, a method to which it is said to be well adapted. Art Director Erica Franke has prepared the arena playing-space as a luxurious "winter garden" in a sumptuous French chateau.

The Christopher Fry adaptation of the Jean Anouilh comedy revolves around the problems of two brothers, identical twins of opposite temperaments, Hugo being brash, domineering, cynical and frigid; Frederic is shy, diffident, romantic, and in love with a hussy, Diana. The latter unluckily is more attracted to Hugo.

Equal to the main plot in interest are half a dozen sub-plots that move charmingly in and out of the play.

The Rev. S. Kanow Tells Auxiliary Of Nisei Problems

The Reverend S. Kanow of the Lincoln Avenue Presbyterian Church of Salinas, told the Wayfarer Auxiliary Tuesday of the difficulties which the American-born Japanese (Nisei) of whom he is one, encountered during World War II. He pointed out that the Nisei clung to their faith in democracy and the belief it would in time settle their inter-racial troubles. He said that already young, well-trained Nisei, both men and women, are being hired in large numbers without discrimination by industry. As understanding between the races grows, discrimination decreases and better social conditions prevail, he said.

The meeting opened with a musical program by Mary Lou Roberts. Mrs. R. L. Harvey led devotions. Mrs. Philip Livingstone presented business and committee reports, and Miss L. Lucile Turner announced World Day of Prayer was to be held March 5 at the Methodist church in Pacific Grove, beginning at 11:00 o'clock in the morning.

Richard Johnson

Richard (Dick) Johnson, a Carmel resident for over 30 years, was stricken with a heart attack while at his job with the M. J. Murphy Lumber Company Monday morning. He died en route to the hospital in the Red Cross ambulance.

In addition to his more than 20 years' association with the Murphy organization, Mr. Johnson had been a member of the technical staff of California's First Theatre in Monterey since the state monument was taken over by the Denby-Watrous management, supervising lighting and set construction. His wife, Rhoda, is in charge of the theatre's costume designing.

He was born April 27, 1891, in Alhambra, and was educated in Southern California and eastern schools. He and his wife came to Carmel in 1924 to attend the first session of the Golden Bough summer theatre school, and remained to settle here permanently. He was later associated with the Golden Bough Theatre as technician for a number of years.

He was a member of All Saints' Episcopal Church, and had been a volunteer participant in the church's recent building program. He is survived by his wife, Rhoda, and two daughters, Mrs. Patricia Johnson Trevett and Gail Johnson, both of Carmel. He also leaves a brother, Gail B. Johnson of Larkspur, and three grandchildren, Sidney, Susan and Kreigh Trevett of Carmel.

Funeral services were held Wednesday morning in All Saints' Church, with the Rev. Alfred Seccombe presiding. Honorary pall-bearers were Adm. A. C. Bennett (USN Ret.), Frank Putnam, Carl Moll, Thomas Broadbent, Charles Fuller and Jack Miller. Private inurnment was at the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea Crematorium, with the Paul Mortuary in charge of arrangements.

Bishop Block Will Confirm 33 At All Saints' Sunday

The Rt. Rev. Karl M. Block, D.D., LL.D., Bishop of the Diocese of California, will visit All Saints' Episcopal Church, Carmel, this Sunday, at the 11:00 o'clock service for the purpose of Confirmation. The Bishop will be the guest preacher for the day.

A class of 33 will be presented, which is one of the largest in the history of the parish. There will be a coffee hour in the parish hall immediately after the service in honor of the Bishop and confirmants.

Bishop Company Gives Appealing Performance Of Boy With A Cart

BY ROBERT BREW

The vehicle of a Christopher Fry play was a happy choice for the Bishop's Company to make in its first appearance in Carmel at the Church of the Wayfarer, Friday night. It was also their first performance outside of the Los Angeles area, where they have been playing for a year. While originally written for more than two dozen actors, the play was moving and effective as it was portrayed by six men and two women. In fact, the poetic drama was so impressive that one lost the feeling of acting at all, and felt that these persons of England in the 10th century were living their experiences. And although there was stylization in certain parts, and almost a complete absence of properties and settings, there was a vividness and reality as the persons in the chancel and moving about the chapel lived the experiences in faith which were theirs.

Cuthman, the shepherd boy, played by Bobby Driscoll, was living a carefree, happy life until the misfortune of his father's death. But not to be beaten by circumstances, he builds a cart, puts his elderly mother in it and starts across England to find a better life for himself and his mother. He goes quietly and hopefully, resolving that he must do God's work. At a particular village, he feels that God has given him a sign and there he will build a church. But failure marks the efforts that are being made, and it appears that nothing will come of it, until the dramatic experience, related by Cuthman: "There under the bare walls of our labor, death and life were knotted in one strength, in divisible as root and sky."

Bobby Driscoll as Cuthman, projected a remarkable intensity of emotion. It appeared in his eyes, on his face, and in the movement of his body. His facility with the poetry of his lines too, made his performance a memorable one. The narrators, Ed Rees and James Wheaton, carried a major share of the exposition and interpretation, and in decided contrast. Ed Rees, also the director of the play and responsible for much of its artistic appeal, was smooth, almost to the point of slickness, while James Wheaton brought to his part not only unusual diction but the deep feeling which is a notable contribution of his race.

Elizabeth Wolfe, perhaps the most versatile member of the company, played half a dozen parts with assurance, showing the ability to make many parts come to life, an ability which she has acquired in varied experience on the stage and screen. Minna Caldwell, a veteran of many years on the stage, was a delightful mother of Cuthman, bringing out the humor and the eccentricities of an old woman who did not understand where her ride in the cart might bring her. Her characterization was perhaps the only one which seemed a bit forced at times, although the Carmel audience was delighted with her.

Dick Treter appeared in several parts, in addition to playing the guitar in haunting theme music, and singing original settings of Fry's verse. One scene which is often recalled by this reviewer is the one in which he played and sang as the threshers chanted and harvested their crops — both the action and symbolism being sharpened by the music. Hal Bokar was a versatile person, appearing in scene after scene in such a way that one felt that with even a simple change of costume — a hat or coat — he lived a different life. George Carlisle, another veteran of many years on Southern California stages, contributed one characterization which he, alone in the company, could give, that of a hunted and submerged older man.

As the chapel lights went on at the conclusion of the performance and the members of the company were introduced, Dr. K. Fillmore Gray expressed appreciation to a group of Carmel patrons who had made the performance possible, and expressed the hope that the Bishop's Company might be seen in Carmel again in the near future.

Editor,
Carmel Pine Cone
Madam:

Your comments on the McCarthy rally bus were pertinent. Our local Republican leadership should understand that McCarthyism is not Republicanism. President Eisenhower has made that crystal clear. If ever it becomes Republicanism I shall leave the party after having been a member for 47 years.

The program the President has presented to Congress is one on which the whole country can unite. That kind of constructive Republicanism can strengthen the nation and win elections.

If any of our local Republican leaders are under the delusion that McCarthyism is Republicanism let them stand up and be counted. We can then back those who back the President.

Editor, The Carmel Pine Cone:

A common ordinary blow-out of an automobile tire made a Laganut out of me, when it might have been that I could now be boasting as being a Pioneer Carmelite. I lived in Laguna Beach over 20 years but only lived in Carmel-by-the-Sea one night, last Friday. I regret now that I missed the chance back in 1910 to see this Aesthetic Haven of rest.

'Twas October the second, third and fourth in the year 1910 that I was playing a vaudeville engagement at the Lyric Theatre in Watsonville. I was doing a single called The Cheerful Pessimist. My sisters, who lived with my parents in San Francisco, thought I should have a look at Carmel-by-the-Sea, as a future home which I intended to establish for my mother and dad, father being an Austrian poet and sisters being lovers of art. A Watsonville friend volunteered to drive me down. We hadn't gone a mile when the blow-out happened, waking half the population of that busy little town. That did it. The man loved his little Hupmobile, and seeing it standing there in that crippled condition and with traces of tears in his eyes, he said, "I'm sorry, but until I get a new tire, we'll have to postpone the trip to Carmel-by-the-Sea."

The last half of that week I was playing the Elite Theatre in Salinas. I never did have the opportunity of seeing Carmel until 44 years later.

I am ready to admit, if it had not been for that blowout, I would not have lived in Laguna Beach twenty years. But how can we escape that which is to be our fate? Seventeen of those 20 years in Laguna I spent as a writer and director of films at Metro Goldwyn Mayer Studios in Culver City. Most of those 17 years I drove daily to the studio from my home, a distance of 65 miles each way. When I first went to Laguna I found it was because of the people, people who were interested in the science of beauty and art. But in spite of the City Fathers who have kept Laguna free of ferris wheels and amusement devices, it is more like a beach-town now than an art colony. I hope your lovely little Carmel-by-the-Sea will never change from what it is right now. It is more distinctive, with a charm all its own.

This photo by Philip Hyde was printed in the Carmel Pine Cone May 29, 1953, when Hyde was making his home in Carmel. It appears in the March, 1954, issue of National Geographic Magazine, out this week, one of the few black and white photos among a collection of color pictures illustrating a National Geographic boat trip down the Green and Yampa Rivers.

The article by Jack Breed is entitled, Shooting the Rapids in Dinosaur Country. Miss Elizabeth Niles has put the library copy on display, and the Pine Cone urges its readers to look at the illustration.

posed building within the monument. One of them, to be thrown across the Green below Echo Park, would back up water through the canyons of the Yampa and Lodore, flooding the hidden ranches, the tree-studded glades, the miles of rapids we had already traversed. The other dam, at Split Mountain, would wipe out the white-water passages of the Green and inundate the Island Park sector.

For a few hours, one day, the National Geographic party left its rubber rafts for a different angle of view.

"Next morning we jumped into one of the trucks and a jeep and ground in low gear up and up 2,500 feet to Harpers Corner, a ledge projecting above the Green River a few hundred yards west of Steamboat Rock.

"From this vantage point, visitors courageous enough to stand at the outer edge can look down upon the canyons of the Green and the Yampa in three directions. Straight below us the Green wound like a brown thread through its rose-white walls. To the east the serpentine Yampa coiled into the distance. To the northeast Zenobia Peak, rising 9,006 feet above sea level, formed the eastern rampart of the brilliant red Canyon of Lodore.

"Jess Lombard took a quick look over the rock lip and reported: 'It's so darn far down there, all your uncles look like ants.'

"Connie Wirth, Ronnie Lee, Tom Vint and Howard Baker pored over their maps, figuring where they might put a ranger station, a viewing platform, trails, and other Park Service facilities to make the region attractive and safe for visitors.

"Connie discussed the future of the area. 'We have plans to develop a national park here. But this will only be possible if the dams don't come in.'

"He was referring to the two great dams for power, irrigation, and flood control, which the Bureau of Reclamation of the U.S. Department of Interior has pro-

Chester Hare

Dr. Chester Hare, who spent most of his life on the Peninsula and only last November retired from his 27-year optometric practice in Monterey, died suddenly of a heart attack last weekend in Surabaya, Indonesia.

The fatal attack occurred at the geographical mid-point of the long-anticipated world tour being shared by Dr. Hare, his wife Hildreth, their sons Lee and Donn Hare and daughter Gay Masten. Word of his death was received Sunday by cablegrams sent to family members on the Peninsula by his widow.

The Hares left Carmel shortly before Christmas on what was to be a two-year round-the-world tour. One of their first stops was Japan, where they enjoyed a 10-day reunion with Dr. Hare's son, Jimmy, now stationed with the Army in Korea. On Sunday, within hours of word of Dr. Hare's death, his first grandchild—Jimmy's son—was born at Peninsula Community Hospital. The baby has been named Stephen Chester.

Mrs. Hare and the children are presently en route to Singapore; no word has yet been received by the family as to the funeral arrangements. Mrs. Hare has indicated that they do not plan to return home in the immediate future, and may continue with previous plans to meet her son, Warren Masten, in France this June. Warren is presently in school in Pennsylvania.

Dr. Hare was born February 6, 1886, at Knight's Landing in Northern California. He was raised on the Peninsula by his mother and stepfather, the late Mr. and Mrs. John Hitchcock, spending much of his early life on the Hitchcock Ranch at Bixby Creek. His love of the Monterey coast area later led Dr. Hare to purchase property on what is now the Brazil Ranch, located just below his childhood home; much of his leisure time in recent years was spent there.

He went through Monterey schools, and was subsequently graduated from the California College of Optometry in San Francisco. After seven years' practice in Lodi, he returned to the Peninsula in 1926 to establish his Monterey practice which flourished for more than a quarter century.

In addition to professional affiliations, Dr. Hare was a charter member of the Monterey Rotary Club.

Besides his wife, Hildreth Taylor Masten Hare, he leaves four sons; Ted Hare of San Francisco, Lee and Donn Hare, and James Hare; and three stepchildren, Rick, Gay and Warren Masten, all of Carmel. In addition, he leaves three half-sisters, Mrs. Jack Armstrong, Mrs. E. C. Walker and Mrs. C. L. Frost, all of Monterey; a half-brother, Dr. J. E. Hitchcock of Sacramento; an uncle, Don B. Smith of Monterey; one grandchild and several nieces and nephews.

Carmel Portraits . . .

By DAISY BOSTICK

If Florence Josselyn would run for Governor of California I'd vote for her although as a rule I subscribe to the old-fashioned idea that a woman should devote herself to husband, home and children, and stay out of politics. But Florence could remain completely out of the political scene and go quietly about her duties as an executive without turning a hair. She is calm, serene, alive both to domestic and civic responsibilities and is nuts about keeping Carmel beautiful. No more fitting place could be found here than as a member of the City Planning Commission. She has been a member of that body for the past seven years and has just been reappointed for four more. Previous to this activity she served on the Library Board for six years.

Aided and abetted by her husband Talbert Josselyn, noted author and dyed-in-the-wool old Carmelite, she has stood firmly for the preservation of beauty, for simplicity in building and for following traditional lines in any decisions which she has to make.

Florence came here in 1922. She taught in Sunset School when there were just three teachers, herself, Mary Powers and Florence Day. It was in a little old building down somewhere in the vicinity of the present school. From that location they had a fine view of the sea and that's how Sunset School got its name.

The School Trustees were Dr. Alfred Burton, Mrs. Herman Spoehr and Miss Ruth Huntington. One day Tal Josselyn met Mrs. Spoehr on the street and suggested that some of the young bloods would like to meet the teachers. Accordingly Mrs. Spoehr gave a party for the teachers and Tal was in attendance. And that's how Florence became Mrs. Talbert Josselyn.

I asked Florence about their daughter Barbara and her modesty compelled her to give me only a few off-the-record facts. But I can say that I have heard from other sources that Barbara has a brilliant scholastic record, that she has won many honors and that she is the apple of her parents' eyes. In college she majored in International Relations and now plans to further her education by a trip to Europe.

Florence Josselyn doesn't seem to remember her teaching experiences as much as her impressions of the beauty of Carmel. She says that in those days the only building on San Carlos Street, aside from the school, was a little shack at the corner of Seventh Avenue which was occupied by one Madame Hanique, an interesting character who stood out in her yard clad in carpet slippers and the equivalent of a Mother Hubbard and painted weird scenes on large canvases, such as Aphrodite coming out of the waves. Not having space in her house, the good lady displayed her wares in her yard. They adorned trees, porch, fence and gate and occasionally a tourist would buy one. They were also on display in Curtis' Candy Store, and the story goes that one day William Ritschel sat at the counter enjoying a soda when his eyes suddenly encountered a bunch of nymphs in their birthday suits staring at him from the wall. He turned pale, ejaculated "My God!" and rushed from the place as if pursued by a devil.

I couldn't get Florence to talk much about herself but she was full of amusing incidents of the old days. She may be considered shy but no one should run away with the idea that she can't have fun or that she has no sense of humor. We both guffawed as we recalled the old Abalone League. Tal was all wrapped up in the League and was captain of one of the teams. He appointed Florence to the position of right field. She says that she wasn't much good at the game, but that when she came to bat, she always used her left hand, and queerly enough the balls went to the left. The players in the field would sort of gather over to the right expecting a left-handed player to send the ball that way. They

*A colorful billet of redwood
Floats on a sea-green wave,
Seeking some quiet lodgment
Among the cliffside rocks.
Landward it floats, then seaward,
Caught by a thousand forces
Tracing their variant courses.*

*Dipping and swaying,
Rising and falling,
Now it approaches the shore,
Now, caught by a receding wave,
Is hurled again rapidly seaward,
Battered and beaten, and then
Swung toward its haven again.*

*Does the fragment long for the forest,
Home of the giant sequoias?
There it was calm and peaceful;
Here it is torn and tormented.
Is there a hope for the hopeless?
Or shall this billet of driftwood
Glide on a current receding
Out to the infinite ocean?*

*See, it is poised on the highest Point of rock, gold in the sunlight!
Now a green swirl from the ocean
Lifts it again into motion.
Hopeless? Yet hope is not ended.
After a torture of waiting,
After the tumult of waters,
Sometime a kind wave will grasp it,
Swing free, and launch it to safety
High on the peaceful bright ledges
Of the homeland of driftwood and tree.*

—E. LEIGH MUDGE

WESTWARD

*Westward the wheeling seagulls rove,
Westward the ships depart,
I stand and watch the gulls and ships,
And westward goes my heart,*

*Out over the mirror of the sky,
The ocean's azure glass,
Along the way the golden day
And all the stars must pass.*

*And back, as though a messenger,
Glides wind-sea-spiced and fair,
To tell my pilgrim spirit of
The mysteries that are there.*

—WALDEN GARRATT

CORONATION PARADE

*We have our coronation splendour too!
Here in the garden, pageantry more gay
And just as stately, just as proud of hue
As any kingdom's marches through the day.
Month after month the varied sequence flows
From herald daffodil to columbine,
And on to tall delphinium and the rows
Of hooded foxgloves faultlessly in line.*

*The little urchins peeping through the fence,
The common daisies and the yellow tares,
These are the crowding multitudes who sense
That diamond coronets are less than theirs.
And who is crowned among these regal scenes?
Ah, here there is no need, for all are queens!*

—ANON.

were nonplussed and never did get used to a left-handed batter sending her balls in the same direction. Florence claims this to be her only distinction and says: "I really wasn't much," just as she minimizes her civic activities.

We talked of the old town fetes, carnivals and circuses, and of an auction held for the benefit of the Library. Hal Bragg, he of the uninhibited personality and the stentorian voice that could be heard for blocks, was auctioneer. A wacky band was organized consisting of Ernie Schwenninger, Steve Glassell, Tal and Windsor Josselyn, neither one of whom could play any instrument, and they yearned for someone who could do some real tootling. Charlie Berkey, assistant cashier of the Bank of Carmel, could play a few notes of True Tone Blues on a trombone, so the bandsmen went to his house, dug up his instrument, went back to the bank and led him, loudly protesting, to their truck, handed him his trombone and bade him play. Then they cruised around the village, each making weird sounds with a noisy instrument. The kidnapping of Charlie Berkey is the only one on Carmel's record thus far.

Probably the most profound and lasting impression made on Florence in those early days was the houses. Her eyes light up as she says: "I thought I had never seen anything so beautiful as those little board-and-bat houses set way back in the trees. The women mostly used Chinese crepe curtains, and the lights coming through them at night was enchanting."

So you see that Florence Josselyn and all the members of the planning commission are up against quite a problem in trying to keep any standards in residential building, although, according to Florence, the builders and architects are very cooperative. Fortunately there are always old-timers on that commission who also remember the board-and-bat houses and the lighted windows at night.

We talked of the many decisions the commission is called upon to make, and Florence says that the traffic problem is the hardest. I blurted: "In my opinion all restrictions should be removed excepting, of course, speed and parking near hydrants." And then I got belligerent. "If we could only get rid of the laws and restrictions, the parking would take care of itself." Florence answered: "Now that's funny. Do you know that several people have said that same thing lately." And then a far-away look came into her eyes and she said wistfully: "And just think if no autos could appear at all on Ocean Avenue. Wouldn't it be lovely?" I have thought that for a long time, so I agreed. I'm something of a screwball, and it doesn't matter much what I think, but Florence is faced with realities, and must make decisions along with other members of the Commission to conform to present day conditions. But it's nice to know that she'd like to see Ocean Avenue without any automobiles.

Moving Time . . .

By C. M. GOETHE

This is the time of year the bird migrants commence moving. Our winter-dwellers, like the waxwings and some white crowned sparrows and fox sparrows, feel spring is on the way and commence the long trip to Canada, to Alaska, to even the Aleutian Islands.

Meantime those that summer vacation with us, like the tanagers, soon will be coming up from Mexico, Guatemala, even the Panama Canal. Some arrive from the Amazon River, and even farther south where the writer studied them while collecting the giant blue-silk butterflies.

A good plan for a young bird student is regularly to list his migrant birds. He then will notice how winter visitants disappear, how summer birds displace them. Also he will find some birds, like the junco, are with us all the year round. These are what the scientists call "residents".

Moffett-Hess Wedding

Recent additions to the young married set of the Naval Post-graduate School are Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Hess, Jr. (Ruth Ann Moffett), who were wed February 7 at the Carmel home of Dr. Harry Clayton Rogers, pastor of the new Presbyterian Church.

The new Mrs. Hess is the daughter of Mrs. Charles Moffett of Carmel and a 1951 graduate of Carmel High School. Before coming to Carmel she attended Westridge School for Girls in Pasadena, and lately has been attending Monterey Peninsula College.

The benedict, son of Mrs. Lenore Scott of Hot Springs, Arkansas, is with the Aerology Department at the Postgraduate School. Prior to his enlistment, he attended Arkansas State College, and plans to resume his education at Ohio State this fall, when his tour of duty is completed.

The wedding was attended by a small group of family members and close friends of the young couple. Bridal attendant was Mrs. James Cherry (Clara Wermuth), a high school and college classmate of Ruth's, while Paul Wade served as best man for the groom. The bridal party and wedding guests attended a dinner at the Spindrift following the ceremony.

The Hesses are established in their new home in Carmel Woods, where they will remain until fall.

Granddaughter for Mrs. Fremont

Mrs. Jesusa Guidi Fremont, who is visiting her son and his wife, the Jack Fremonts, in Montgomery, Alabama, writes to announce the birth on January 29 of her second grandchild—the second daughter for the Fremonts. The baby girl has been named Paula Marie; her older sister is Pamela.

The Fremonts have made their home in Montgomery since his recent return from two years of flight duty with the Air Force in Korea. His mother has been with them since the Christmas holidays, but now that her new granddaughter has arrived safely she plans to return to Carmel around the first of next month.

The new baby and her sister can claim direct descent from General Fremont.

Foreign Student Panel

At the general meeting of the Monterey Peninsula A.A.U.W. Wednesday evening, 8:00 o'clock, at Student Union, Monterey College, a panel of foreign students will discuss, Can the Foreign Student Help Achieve Peace?

Dr. Calvin Flint, president of the college, will moderate. The program has been arranged by Mrs. Lorne Dewar, who invites those planning to attend to be prepared with questions and ideas for the open discussion which will follow the panel.

Hostess will be Mrs. Wade Deddeh. Eleanor Henry is program chairman.

Wayfarer Woodchoppers' Dinner

A Woodchopper's Dinner will be held Saturday evening at 7:00 o'clock at the Church of the Wayfarer, sponsored by the Wayfarer Mothers' Club. This is an annual affair and will be attended by 30 couples, parents of younger children in the Church School.

The dinner and evening has been planned by Mrs. Richard W. Bell, assisted by Mrs. William L. Place, Mrs. Jack R. Songer, Mrs. F. R. Haselton, Mrs. Thomas E. Auger, Mrs. Norman L. Oleson, Mrs. Ted W. Minnis, Mrs. F. W. Slattery, and Mrs. K. Fillmore Gray.

The committee will serve the dinner, following which the desserts, boxed for two and brought by the ladies, will be auctioned off, as in an old-fashioned box social.

AAUW Sections Tuesday

Two section groups of the A.A.U.W. will meet next Tuesday. The Afternoon Book Section will gather at 2:00 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Ted Durein on Lazarus Drive. Co-hostesses will be Sylvia Bastin and Effa Spencer. Lucy Mills will review The Tudor Rose by Margaret Campbell Barnes, while brief notes on new books will be presented by Philipine Cerecilio.

Also on Tuesday, at 7:45 in the evening, the Arts and Crafts Section will meet at the home of Mary Illich on San Carlos and Vista, Carmel, for a workshop dealing with problems of interior decorating. Co-hostesses will be Mrs. Curtis Spillers and Louis Van Sickle.

Valentine Fashion Show Dinner

A capacity-plus audience of 350 crowded Monterey Peninsula Country Club Sunday evening for the gala Valentine's Day dinner party sponsored by the Monterey Hotel Association for the benefit of the Monterey County Heart Association.

Highlight of the evening was the season's first fashion show, in which 15 models paraded the new around-the-clock spring outfits from the shops of Harriet Duncan in Carmel and Ed Williams in Monterey. With Mrs. Duncan and Col. H. P. Kayser as commentators, the models posed on a podium under a glittering red and silver heart to musical accompaniments by Peggy Farlinger, pianist, and Angelo Rodriguez, baritone.

A panel of judges chose the cocktail costume modeled by Mrs. Betty Abau as the outstanding feminine fashion in the show; her frock combined a challis blouse and weskit hand-sequinned in red and gold with a full off-white flannel skirt. Jack Dougherty, sporting a check cashmere jacket with grey flannel trousers, got the nod for best male outfit. Judges were Judge Anthony Brazil and Judge Ray Baugh, and the Mesdames George Clemens, Jack Tostevin, Ray Ramsey, Charles Grant, Elmer Zanetta and Lou Roller.

Cascarone Ball Next Saturday

Monterey's colorful El Baile de los Cascarones, the traditional Spanish ball which marks the approach of the Lenten season, will be held next Saturday night in the grand ballroom of the U. S. Naval Postgraduate School.

Carefully stored in readiness for the party are hundreds of beautifully-decorated confetti-filled eggshells which for the past year members of the party's sponsoring group, the Monterey Civic Club, have prepared. On the night of the party, the cascarones will be sold, and tradition requires that the gentleman sprinkle its contents over the head of his lady fair.

The festivities begin at 9:00 o'clock, with the grand march at 9:45. Spanish costume is requested, though formal dress is acceptable. Prizes will be awarded for the best men's and women's costumes. Entertainment will include strolling troubadours, Spanish songs and dances, and dancing to an orchestra.

Heading the arrangements committee is Mrs. William Sebenius. Reservations may be made by calling the ticket chairman, Mrs. Al Fowler, at 5-3545.

Realtors' Dinner Dance

Members of the Carmel-Monterey Realty Boards will gather for a big perloo next Friday night in Monterey, when state officials of the California Real Estate Association pay their annual visit here.

The realtors and their spouses will observe the occasion with a dinner dance at Spindrift, commencing at 7:00 o'clock. The honor of guests will be L. I. McClellan, president of the C.R.E.A., and Eugene Confer, the association's secretary. Other guests will be commanding officers from the military posts on the Peninsula.

Among the official greeters for the visitors will be Lou Conlan, president of the Carmel Realty Board; Allen Knight, president of the Monterey board; and Mrs. Gladys Johnston, regional vice-president of the California Real Estate Association.

Garden Club Meeting Tonight

The monthly meeting of the Monterey Peninsula Garden Club will be held tonight at the Pacific Grove Women's Club. Mrs. C. C. Brockman, president, will open the meeting at 8:00 o'clock with the presentation of door prizes. Speaker of the evening will be Mrs. Lawrence Lyons, who will discuss how to grow fuchsias and give a demonstration of the proper pruning of these popular shrubs. Members are invited to bring flower arrangements and plants for the plant sales table.

Sno-Cats stalk trouble in the mountains. High in the snow country of the Pacific West, winter blizzards are fierce and frequent. Here motorized Sno-Cats help telephone crews roll out fast to stop trouble before it can interrupt service. The powerful "Cats" carry 6 to 8 men comfortably, cruise over the snow and ice at speeds up to 25 miles an hour. Using these vehicles instead of skis or snowshoes, our mountain crews patrol vast areas faster. They can spot such potential troublemakers as leaning poles, broken branches, wires buried in towering snow drifts. By saving valuable time and helping prevent trouble, the Sno-Cat helps us cut costs, hold down the price of telephone service to you. Pacific Telephone works to make your telephone a bigger value every day.

The Time Has Come .

How strong is a mushroom? Just strong enough to push through soft, friable earth . . . or so we believe. If you take a mushroom in your hand and press gently the thing will disintegrate, therefore, the mushroom is the frailest form of flora. Well, don't you believe it! A single mushroom has the power of a pile driver, and come out my way and I'll prove it.

The driveway to my home is built of sturdy four-inch blacktop, well hardened through the years. Suddenly, smack in the center of this driveway, up popped what I thought to be a gopher hole, a regular gopher hole plus the pile above hole. I was admiring the prowess of this gopher with strength enough to penetrate, while I was cussing the little beast for ruining my road. I asked my favorite contractor to come and repair the damage done, as I thought, by a gopher. My friend just stood there laughing. "You think a gopher did that damage?" he asked. "Sure", said I, "what else?"

He knelt and removed the broken black-top and of all things, pulled out a "frail" mushroom! This tiny bit of life had heaved and heaved and up-ed my roadway, breaking the surface to a radius of over one foot. The entire surface of the black top around the hole was split and crumbled. I was flabbergasted! My friend told me that in his road-building, mushrooms were his worst enemy. He had seen one of these frail bits of life push away rocks and debris, bust through all sorts of hard-top material and come merrily to life.

The Bible tells of the power of one mustard seed, but who of us ever heard of the power of one tiny mushroom? Help! Help! A mushroom is chasing me! A mushroom is going to mushroom whenever and wherever it likes and we can't do a single thing about it. Noah Webster, in his book, lists a mushroom as an "ephemeral growth". What you mean . . . ephemeral? Is a pile driver ephemeral? Of course, this word means

"short lived", but its connotation has come to mean delicate and dainty as a butterfly's wings. Not my mushroom!

Aside from the annoyance of my debacle, this experience gave me pause for wonderment. We live with growing things all around us and never stop to consider the power behind the urge of seed and root to fulfill their destinies.

It may be that I am going into the mushroom business and that my roadway will sprout a good living for me. Now, wouldn't that be sum'pin?

Congratulations to the new Leaders' Club members, Luan Meatheringham, Alicia Bauer and Pat Ricketts. The initiation will be held next Monday at the conclusion of a progressive dinner. Hors d'oeuvres will be served at the home of Judy Oliver, salad at Jeanne Fratessa's, main course at Pat Finley's, and dessert at Peggy Weaver's. The election of officers will also be at Peggy's.

Thursday members of the Rally Council put on a rally at Sunset School. The cheerleaders and song-leaders (with the help of the band) taught the students Carmel High School's yells and songs. It was suggested to the council that since many members of the grammar school's student body come to the games, they may as well learn the yells. Then they won't be baffled with something entirely new when they graduate into the secondary school.

Time Now To Plant, Sew, Beach Comb For May Day Carnival

With springtime just a shower or two away it is time to think of the annual Carmel PTA and Girls League Carnival. And that is what Mrs. Walter Stuefoten, general chairman for the PTA, is doing. Already she has her committees enthusiastically plotting and planning, bursting with ideas for making this carnival the best of all.

It is to be a real old fashioned carnival with clowns and balloons, bands playing, barkers barking, confetti, noise, fun and enticing wares for all to buy.

These wares don't just "drop like the gentle rains from heaven" but must first be made and donated by scores of people in the community. So Mrs. Stuefoten urges garden enthusiasts to start seedlings and nurse plants to their peak for the plant booth. Also beachcombers should look for choice pieces of driftwood for planters or decoration. Anyone able to run a seam or a sewing machine may use her imagination and skill to whip up pretty and practical articles for the needle-craft booth. Those who feel they haven't the talent for such work may help enormously by making a cash donation for materials for others to sew. All volunteers for either finished work or cash contributions should call Mrs. William R. Johnson (7-4684) chairman of the needlecraft booth, so she may know what to expect.

Later other contributions will be needed for the bake sale (cakes, cookies and candies), and for the hot luncheons. The bake sale will also feature the prize winners of the children's baking contest. There will be prizes for the prettiest and the best made in each age group.

The carnival date is May 1; place, Carmel High School.

THE WATER STORY
CHAPTER 9300 Gallons a day

(More than a ton)

That's about the quantity of water used in this community every day by each of our domestic customers on the average—some use more and some less. If you had to pump and carry all this water yourself it would take a lot of time and hard work. But, thanks to your water plant, you get all the water you need with a twist of the wrist. And if you pumped your own water from your own well you could never be sure of its safety. It's our job to see to it that you have safe water at all times.

Americans are the healthiest and cleanest people in the world partly because they use so much water, much more than the peoples of other nations. In England the average use per person is about 50 gallons a day. On the continent of Europe it is less and there are places in the world where the supply is pitifully small; in Iraq, for instance, where the daily supply for each person is only three gallons.

Keeping track of the quantity of water used each month by our customers is a function of our accounting department. How this phase of the water business is handled will be explained in the next chapter of THE WATER STORY. And, by the way, the average cost of 300 gallons of water is only 16 cents—a mighty low price to pay for so valuable a commodity.

Szymon Goldberg Concert Pleases Grove Audience

By Louis Fragos

Last Thursday evening the Community Concert Association presented Szymon Goldberg, Polish violinist, in the Pacific Grove High School Auditorium.

The well chosen, conventional program consisted of Kreisler's Praeludium and Allegro; Gluck's Melodie; Beethoven's Kreutzer Sonata; Mozart's Adagio and Rondo; Chausson's Poeme and two Brahms Hungarian dances. Mr. Goldberg gave the audience an evening of excellent violin playing. He excels in a broad tone with a strong singing quality. The Beethoven Kreutzer Sonata was played in a straight forward manner and consequently did not vary enough in mood. Mr. Goldberg was at his best after the intermission. Mozart's Adagio and Rondo were beautifully played. In the Rondo, which has been arranged by Kreisler, one could feel the Kreisler spirit infused into the cadenza. The Chausson Poeme which followed was the most exciting in the evening. Here Szymon Goldberg projected himself into the music and gave a moving rendition of this difficult French Work. The Brahms dances which concluded the program were played with fire and brilliance. Robert Turner provided excellent assistance at the Baldwin piano.

The Community Concert Association deserves a vote of thanks for its fine series and for making it possible for many young people to hear great music performed by artists of note.

Recommended For The Maguires — A Homeside Tour

Mr. and Mrs. Eustace J. Maguire, who returned home to Carmel last week after a 42-day cruise to Brazil, Uruguay and Argentina, have a wonderfully uncomplicated philosophy about travel. "We like going, and we think we may as well keep on going as long as we can."

The Maguires retired to Carmel about five and a half years ago. In that time, they've taken five long trips: three successive jaunts to Europe, including an extensive cruise of the Mediterranean, a cruise through the Caribbean Islands, and finally the recent South American trip.

When the wanderlust moved them before Christmas, the Maguires thought of a cruise to Australia and New Zealand, two spots they've never visited. But at that time, no ships were Australia-bound from the Coast; passage was available to South America, and since they'd never been there either, they decided to give it a whirl.

The cruise, aboard the liner SS Del Sud, carried them through the Caribbean to St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands, then to Rio de Janeiro ("an interesting harbor, but a peculiar place to put a city"), São Paulo, Montevideo and finally Buenos Aires. At all ports but the latter, where they disembarked for a three-day stay in a hotel ashore, the Maguires lived aboard ship. They liked Buenos Aires very well, its sights and its shops, and particularly its cuisine — "very good eating there indeed, particularly the meat" — and explored the city thoroughly, including a bird's eye view from the top of Sugarloaf Mountain.

The return trip, covering approximately the same ports, was equally pleasant; fine weather both ways ("some of the passengers thought it was rough, but we've been through so much of it that we didn't even notice") and the company, mostly fellow Americans, proved congenial. They arrived in New Orleans February 4. Mr. Maguire promptly observed that the ship would sail again in just a couple of weeks, so why not go around again? However, Mrs. Maguire was in favor of at least a brief stop at home — but not for long: "We haven't stopped traveling yet," she says briskly.

Before their retirement, the Maguires lived for many years in San Francisco and Berkeley. Mrs. Maguire, a New Englander by birth, is a former commercial artist, while Mr. Maguire, a native Canadian, was for many years an employee of Santa Fe. In between their travels, he's found time to do some writing, including contributions for the Pine Cone poetry column.

"It's been a good life," reflected Mrs. Maguire, "and we're still enjoying it. Of course we like Carmel," she added, almost apologetically, "but then it's nice to travel if you can, and I guess we've found that we can."

Panhellenic Group Meets

The second meeting of the newly-formed Monterey Bay Panhellenic group was held last Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Gilbert F. Kinney in Monterey. Officers elected for the club's first year were Miss Catherine de la Roza, president; Mrs. Henry C. Coles, Jr., vice-president; Mrs. Richard C. Eck, secretary; Mrs. Gilbert F. Kinney, treasurer; and Mrs. Douglas D. Swift, publicity. Appointed as advisors were Mrs. Gleb Drujina and Mrs. Richard W. Holt.

The group will meet on the fourth Tuesday of each month. All women formerly affiliated with a national sorority are invited to join. Membership is on an individual rather than a sorority basis. Information regarding membership may be obtained from the president, Miss de la Roza, at 2-0859.

Canine Correspondent Reports

From Jerry, well-known canine member of the Sumral Otrich family, comes word of his folks' whereabouts. In somewhat shaggy but nevertheless legible script, Jerry reports "We felt like a trip so are on our way to Southern Oregon. Rain all the way but nice trip anyway." When last seen, the Otriches, and Jerry, were in Weaverville, and heading north.

Mrs. Newberry on Old Carmel
Recollections of her late husband and his colorful connections with early-day Carmel will be presented by Mrs. Perry Newberry for members of the Carmel Foundation in a talk to take place Wednesday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock in Town House. Mrs. Newberry will be guest of honor at a tea to follow the program.

Padre Trails Contest

Padre Trails Camera Club will hold its February contest meeting at 8:00 o'clock Saturday evening in Room 11, Sunset School. Subject, funny portraits.

At the monthly business meeting last week, Mrs. J. F. MacKenzie's photo, Moonlight on Carmel Bay, was selected for the 1954-55 program cover. Programs, listing contest subjects and meeting dates will be available at camera stores early in March.

Woman's Club Garden Section

Native succulents will be the topic of the next meeting of the Woman's Club Garden Section, to be held at 2:00 o'clock Monday afternoon in the clubhouse. Chairman for the meeting will be Mrs. Mary Margaret McIntire, while Mrs. Noel T. Arnold will be guest speaker.

Members are asked to bring table arrangements of succulents to the meeting for display and judging. Prizes will be given for the best arrangements. Tea will follow the meeting, with Mrs. Gilbert Campbell and her committee in charge.

Boy for the Livingstons

From San Francisco comes word of the arrival of Michael Brunn Livingston, the first child for Mr. and Mrs. Barry Livingston (Barbara Timmins) who have made their home in the city since their marriage last year. The baby boy was born January 29 at Children's Hospital. Grandparents of the new heir are Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Timmins of Carmel and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Livingston of San Francisco. Barbara's brother, Frank, now serving with the Coast Guard, has also been informed of his new status of uncle.

Civic Pride Vindicated

Among the people all over the world who heard glowing descriptions of Rod Wilsons during their grand tour last year were Mr. and Mrs. Oswald Schiller of West Hartford, Connecticut, whom the Wilsons met aboard ship.

While the Schillers insisted that they seldom if ever got to the West Coast, the Wilsons predicted that eventually they would show up in Carmel, and when they did, please to visit them. Sure enough, weekend before last, the Schillers materialized here, and the Wilsons, to their great satisfaction, were able to vindicate their civic pride. The Schillers, making a weekend stopover in the course of a business-cum-pleasure trip to the coast, were more than impressed by the Peninsula generally and Carmel particularly, but what really flabbergasted them was the weather, then at its unseasonal best.

"Is it always like this here in the winter?" asked Mrs. Schiller incredulously as they basked warmly on the beach. "Of course!" answered Helen Wilson stoutly. And she didn't even have her fingers crossed.

Farewells were said last week to Karen and Tom Silvear, who are now busy settling into their new home at Marine Corps Air Station, El Toro, Santa Ana.

Tom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Silvear of Carmel Highlands, was a Marine Corporal in Korea for over a year, and rejoined his old outfit recently. He is now doing duty as a rifle instructor at El Toro.

Karen, the daughter of Mrs. Julian von Meier, plans to set up her Lares and Penates wherever Tom is stationed, and is already making new friends in the southland.

Causerie Program Next Week
A program "musicale et artistique" will be presented at the next meeting of La Causerie Francaise on Friday, February 26, at the Carmel Art Gallery.

The first half of the program will be provided by Mrs. Alfred Seccombe, playing a recital of French music for the harp. This will be followed by a projection of color slides of Paris, Versailles and La Malmaison taken by the club president, Edgar Bissantz, during his European trip last summer.

As usual, the evening's entertainment will be followed by refreshments and a social hour. The purpose of La Causerie Francaise is to foster public interest in the French language and culture. All persons are welcome to participate, regardless of their proficiency with the language.

Tuckers Give Multi-Purpose Party
If anyone had an excuse to give a party last weekend, it was Dr. and Mrs. Edwin Tucker—and celebrate they did, with a gala cocktail party Saturday evening for over 100 guests.

Occasioning the festivities was (1) the Tuckers' wedding anniversary, (2) Mrs. Tucker's birthday, (3) the first anniversary of the arrival of their young son, Fordham—all of which events occurred within days of each other—and (4) a housewarming for their new home fronting the Carmel lagoon. To top it all off, the party had a Valentine theme, Valentine's Day being Sunday.

Hearts and flowers formed the decorative frame for the party: great bunches of sweetpeas, daffodils, pansies, stock and ranunculus adorned the living room and lanai, and at that hardly depleted the remarkably prolific garden which in just six months, thanks to Dr. Tucker's talented green thumb, has turned their lot into a riot of color.

Valentine Musicals

Sunday afternoon there was a festive Valentine Musicals in Angie Machado's Studio, when fourteen of her students played a piano program for their friends and parents.

The musical part of the afternoon lasted about one hour, and although only piano selections were heard, the program gained much in variety with quartets, and duos, as well as the solo numbers offered by the pupils.

A social period, with refreshments, was enjoyed after the program by the 45 guests.

Filipino Group Installs Board

The Filipino Community of the Monterey Peninsula installed a new panel of officers at its annual meeting Sunday evening in the Carmel American Legion Hall. Attorney Fred Farr was guest of honor at the meeting, which drew visitors from Salinas, Watsonville, Palo Alto and San Francisco.

Outgoing president Plaredel Macahilig turned the gavel over to the new head, Carlos Tan. Other new officers are Fabian Era, vice-president; Mrs. Plaredel Macahilig, secretary; Mrs. J. Fernandez, assistant secretary; Ray Menes, treasurer; Alipio Gundran, assistant treasurer; Fred Domingo, auditor; Plaredel Macahilig, business manager; Andres Gomez, parliamentarian. Named sergeants-at-arms were Elesio Requiro and Manuel Dizon, while Isaac Israel, B. S. Gunes and Philip Concepcion were named to the board.

Dist. Governor Visits Kiwanis

Jim Sloan of Salinas, Kiwanis division district governor, was introduced by Carmel Kiwanis President Don Staniford as guest speaker at yesterday's luncheon meeting at La Playa. Sloan outlined the objectives of Kiwanis International's 4000 member organizations in the U.S. and Canada, stressing the theme for 1954—"Build by Faith, Loyalty and Service."

As You Like It Choice For One Festival Play; Moor, Lear Tie For 2nd

As You Like It is the choice of Bert Heron's Shakespeare reading group for one of two productions for the projected 1954 Shakespeare Festival in the Forest Theater.

Votes were cast last Thursday evening to choose one comedy and one tragedy from the six plays read by the group since October. Othello and King Lear were tied for the second production. Final choice will rest on production factors.

The group will continue to meet every Thursday evening in the Forest Theater Workshop to prepare for the two festival plays. All interested are invited to attend.

First Fashion Show At La Playa Tuesday

The first fashion show luncheon of the spring season at La Playa Hotel, to be held Tuesday noon, will be in part a family affair: many of the modish Carmel matrons who will model new costumes from The Cinderella Shop will be accompanied by their equally stylish offspring, sporting the latest in junior-junior league outfits from Sybell's Bib 'n Tucker.

Among the two-generation teams who will model will be Mrs. George Leutzinger and her seven-year-old daughter Mary Jane; Mrs. Frederick Stanley and three-year-old son Skee; Mrs. John Clancy and her two girls Pamela and Cathleen; and Mrs. Kirby Low and her trio of youngsters, Claire Marie, Eric and Annette. And three generations will be represented in models Mrs. Thomas Work, Jr., her daughter Mrs. Ted Fielding and three-year-old granddaughter Ellen Fielding. Others who will show the new styles are Mrs. Elizabeth Goodrich, Mrs. Rudolph von Urban, Mrs. Thomas Hopper and Mrs. Clyde Young.

David Eldridge will be commentator for the show, reservations for which may be made in advance.

Have You Read?...

In time for the winter season in Death Valley, the popular book, Death Valley: The Facts by the late W. A. Chalfant has just been reprinted by Stanford University Press. The book appears in a new paper-bound format and at a new lower price of $1.50.

The author was for fifty-five years editor of the Inyo Register in Bishop, California. His widow continues to make her home there.

The new printing of Death Valley: The Facts is the ninth since the publication of the book in 1930. It is valued for the way in which it debunks legends of Death Valley and supplies factual material even more astonishing.

Chalfant's book, is one of the Stanford Outdoor Books series, which includes Imperial and Coachella Valleys by C. H. Steere, Yosemite Valley by Ansel and Virginia Adams; Grand Canyon Country by M. B. Tillotson and Frank J. Taylor; Sequoia and Kings Canyon National Parks by John R. White and Samuel J. Pusateri, and Lewis W. Clark's trail and pocket guides to The High Sierra Camp Areas of Yosemite National Park.

Edgar Bissantz and C. J. Ryland, represented the property owners. Bissantz took issue with the statement that the church would be used only for a short period one day a week. He pointed out that Carmel churches are used for wedding ceremonies, Bach Festival Concerts, and one, last week end, presented a theatrical production. He didn't believe that Highway No. 1 would be used as much as the expert assumed, but that most of the congregation would approach the church by the roads through Hatton Fields, which were not built to carry heavy traffic. People had invested heavily in residential property in the area, he added, with the assurance that it would continue to maintain its residential character.

Their fifth child—"and I sort of hope it's the last", cheerfully remarks the mother—was born last Tuesday to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wise of Fifth and Escalle Way in Carmel.

The new Wise is a boy, and a lot of boy at that: nine pounds, 11 ounces, according to the scales at Peninsula Community Hospital. He's been named Randall William, which just about fills out the roster of "R's" in the Wise family—the baby's four brothers are named Robert, Russell and Richard. On the distaff side, outnumbered but holding her own, is ten-year-old Carol.

MPC CAMPUS NEWS

By Allene Knight

Today was the day for the annual touch football contest between the freshman and sophomore boys. The game was held at noon and the band, songleaders, and many rooters turned out to witness the contest. The name of this event is the Chilly Bowl.

The freshman and sophomore class held their elections last week and elected the following officers for the second semester. Freshman officers are Mas Hashimoto, president; Randy Reinstedt, vice-president; Carol Stromberg, secretary; and Lois Walden, treasurer. Sophomore officers are Glen Tichner, president; Jack Pierce, vice-president; Gloria Luzzi, secretary; and Pete Woods, treasurer.

A basketball tournament for the girls will start next week on Tuesday and Thursday noons. Captains for the four teams which will compete are Sue Shadley, Peggy Carpenter, Joan Maiorana and Pat Lang. The girls were to have practiced on Tuesday of this week, but they were rained out.

With Buoyancy, Finesse

BY EBEN WHITTLESEY

A good cello in the hands of an able Frenchman makes for enjoyable listening. This was proved in Sunset Auditorium Tuesday evening when the Carmel Music Society presented Pierre Fournier. When this artist plays, the robust tone of the cello balances the sensitive nicety of his style. The same technique on a violin might produce a slightly pallid effect.

Mr. Fournier's program was one of the happiest combinations of music we have had. There was a good classical foundation in the Bach Sonata No. 3 in G minor. Intellectual stimulus in a very palatable form came with the Brahms Sonata in F major, while emotional color appeared in the not-to-florid Schubert Sonata Arpeggione. Then the modern touch was given by the Stravinsky Suite Italienne. A final heartwarming bit of melody was provided by Paganini's Variations on one string.

No pot-boilers or trivia were played, which is as it should be for this rather business-like audience.

This artist's style is fluent rather than aggressive. His interpretations are exceedingly refined, in the best sense of that word, and they bespeak the clarity of the Gallic mind. There is no sloppy emotionalism, nor are there any fireworks indulged in merely for their dramatic value. The artist has a fine poise and pleasing stage manners.

From the beginning of the Bach sonata the listener was impressed by the fluent smoothness of the cello's tone. The instrument produced none of the guttural grumbling and wheezing noticeable in the playing of some very highly regarded cellists. The Bach was accorded a conservative, unaccented reading.

Schubert's Sonata was one of the less decorated Schubert works, played with a simple, unaffected manner. Howard Wells' piano accompaniment was admirably blended. I especially enjoyed the Brahms sonata with the brooding introduction to the first movement, which breaks into a fine melody. The first movement might be interpreted as the composer talking to himself in a low voice. The lively finale brought the first half of the program to a spirited close.

The Stravinsky Suite Italienne is a lively, tuneful work, whose modernism is restrained enough not to interfere with comprehension even on a first hearing. It was played with great vitality and clarity, and the pianist had a very worthwhile part which he handled well.

The encores included a lyric, nostalgic Debussy tune and a gay dance. I have not often heard a cello played with so much buoyancy and finesse.

Council Opens Casanova Street

At the February 3 council meeting Street Commissioner Francis Whitaker reported that McClellan had offered to pay not only his share of the cost of a contributory plan to open Casanova, but Mrs. Taylor's share as well. Up until that time Mrs. Taylor had agreed with the rest of the property owners in the block that the quiet and beauty of the neighborhood should not be disturbed by creating a through street.

At Wednesday night's meeting, she and Mrs. McClellan (McClellan absented himself) were the only property owners who approved the opening. Four telegrams and a phone call protesting the opening were reported by City Clerk Peter Mawdsley. Twelve property owners in the block appeared at the council meeting to protest in person.

Street Commissioner Francis Whitaker said the oaks at the end of the street would not be disturbed since there would be a divided street with the oaks forming an island. Mrs. Glen Sorey pointed out that the divided street would necessarily be narrow, cars would park there, and in time the oaks would have to be sacrificed in the interest of safety.

The other councilmen, one after the other, reiterated that legally they couldn't deny a property owner access to his property. Finally one of them foolishly asked City Attorney Tom Perry to back them up. "You can't deny a man access to his property," commented Perry, "but you don't have to build him a street."

Previous owners of the McClelan property have started action to get the street opened but have been discouraged by the city councils of the past who have felt that "Carmel is primarily a city of homes", and have not wanted to encourage the investment builder who denudes lots of trees to crowd as much house on a building site as the law allows. Early inhabitants who came to Carmel to live, not to exploit the town, built among the pines on sixty and eighty foot lots, or larger, believing their privacy, and a screen of trees, of more value than the income from a rental unit crowding their elbow. The city councils have abetted this tendency whenever it was in their power. One means is to keep dead-end streets closed. This council's opening a dead-end street to the detriment of the area and over the protest of all the neighboring property owners is an open declaration that the interest of the investment builder takes precedence over the rights of his neighboring home-owners. The council has hung up the welcome sign to the exploiters of our residence district. Large lots, difficult of access for more than one dwelling, that herefore would interest only a home owner, will now be attractive to the builder of rental units, since he knows the city has established a precedent of opening streets for his profit and convenience. When a lot is utilized to the full extent of its legal building sites, the trees go.

The Pine Cone urges its readers to look at the property at the Southwest corner of Casanova and Fourth.
